Mr. Samarth Sharma, Consultant MGNCRE, Ministry of Education, Govt. of India was the Guest of Honour and Mr. Gurcharan Singh, Faculty Member for Cyber Crimes, Central Detective Training Institute was the resource person for this workshop. He highlighted the need of becoming aware of misuses of technology and to avoid being a victim of such crimes in today's era. The students were told about the legal aspects of accessing the internet and using virtual life

judiciously. Several case studies were shared with the audience and they were further sensitized towards privacy and security of data. Five values which include responsibilities, respect, compassion, resilience and integrity were emphasized and cyber laws of India were shared with students.

The resource person presented live hacking demonstrations and made them aware about various ways likewise two-step verification, comment control, using a strong password etc. that can be adopted in order to avoid cyber crimes. Most people are at least semi-aware that identity theft and network hacks are possible, and are reasonably good at not intentionally downloading malicious code or clicking dubious links. It is also common for organizations to implement firewalls, comprehensive IT defense systems and IT policies and protocols to keep themselves safe from online threats. He also mentioned that Cyber security awareness can help the students and faculty understand how they can be easily targeted by cyber crime, and the steps they can take in the event that they fall victim. This goes beyond simply being conscious of potential threats, but provides students with the hands-on knowledge of how cyber crime works, what internal prevention policies are and why they exist, and what is expected of them moving forward.

He concluded the session by sharing some tips for internet banking, using social networking apps and safe online transactions. He shared the names of different websites and applications launched by the government of India for reporting and avoiding cyber crimes.
